

PROFILE

“Over the course of 19 years, Edmund Bon has appeared in more than 60 major cases involving, fraud, industrial relations, contractual breaches, shareholder-director disputes, and construction cases relating to difficult questions of law and fact.”

“AmerBON offers specialist transactional and advisory services, and legal representation to major corporations and public-listed companies in the High courts, Court of Appeal and Federal Court.”

“Amer Hamzah is a walking encyclopedia on criminal law. Coupled with him being so approachable, he makes an excellent choice for us when we are in need of a good criminal lawyer.”

PROFILE

AmerBON, Advocates offers fully integrated legal services within the framework of a set of chambers, with a focus on litigation and dispute resolution. Amer and Edmund’s select group of specialist lawyers are “book smart” and “street smart”, devising winning strategies that combine a mastery of the law, familiarity of procedural tactics, and political and client sensitivity. The firm is aggressive in delivering the best outcomes for clients, in the shortest time and most cost-effective manner.

AmerBON advises on high-value transactions at pre-action stages, and provides legal representation in arbitrations, the High Courts, the Court of Appeal, and the Federal Court. The firm is engaged by both federal and state governments, public-listed and government-linked companies, media and high net-worth public figures, for strategic corporate and litigation advice on complex cases.

This is a unique law practice. First, the firm only takes on a limited number of cases a year to ensure its lawyers are highly responsive to its clients.

Second, the firm is able to holistically advise on both the civil and criminal aspects of the cases it handles. The lawyers have the expertise to conduct criminal defence litigation when required to.

Third, each lawyer is motivated by social causes, such as aboriginal rights and the abolition of capital punishment. Through the firm's Collective of Applied Law & Legal Realism (CALR), the lawyers devote up to 40% of their time to pro bono work in service to the community. The CALR also undertakes research and development, and training of law graduates for the firm.

Fourth, the firm's lawyers are well-known players in public interest cases. Media outlets routinely seek out AmerBON lawyers for quick and accurate commentary on fast developing stories with legal implications. For clients, this means that AmerBON lawyers bring to the table a high degree of social capital - public trust, influence, profile, and networks, which could be tapped on where appropriate.

ADVOCATE & HEAD OF CHAMBERS (CIVIL)

Edmund Bon Tai Soon

Years of Experience: 19 Years

Edmund read law at University College London, and was called to the English Bar (Lincoln's Inn) in 1997. He was admitted as an advocate and solicitor of the High Court of Malaya in 1998, and has been in active practice since then. Edmund is a Chevening scholar and has a Master of Studies in International Human Rights Law from Oxford University.

Edmund routinely represents individuals, financial institutions, law enforcement authorities, governments, corporations and trade unions at all stages of complex transactions, from negotiations to dispute resolution and mediation. He has long-standing experience advising on matters involving industrial relations, corporate, commercial, tax, contract, professional negligence, business, trusts, water and environment law.

In 2008, Edmund was appointed to advise a Chief Minister and State Government and since then has been dealing with – both as a contract negotiator and litigator – major issues pertaining to the management of State resources.

Over the course of almost two decades in practice, Edmund has appeared as solicitor and lead counsel in cases ranging from corporate and commercial law to property disputes and defamation actions. He has conducted trials in a myriad of cases under laws such as the Industrial Relations Act, Employment Act, Trade Unions Act, National Land Code, Contracts Act, Companies Act, Penal Code and Securities Industry Act (now repealed).

Edmund has appeared in more than 60 major cases involving fraud, industrial relations, contractual breaches, shareholder-director disputes, and construction cases relating to difficult questions of law and fact. Of note, he had successfully defended the National Union of Bank Employees (NUBE) and acted for the Malaysian Trades Union Congress (MTUC) in numerous 'union busting' judicial review applications brought by financial institutions.

Edmund's cases have been reported on numerous occasions in law journals and news media.

Edmund is frequently consulted by private clients, multinational companies, the Malaysian Bar Council, public authorities, and governmental bodies on legal issues and law reform. He was previously a 5-time elected member of the Malaysian Bar Council and chaired the Constitutional Law (2009-2011), Human Rights (2007-2009) and National Young Lawyers' (2006-2008) committees. After a break of five years, Edmund recently stood for election and was elected to the Bar Council for the term of 2016-2017. He then chaired the Innovation & Future of the Law Committee.

Edmund is regularly invited to speak at local and international conferences on constitutional and human rights law. He has conducted more than 900 hours of training for young lawyers and activists on similar topics.

Edmund's articles and papers have been published in law journals and by news media. Edmund's latest published work is in the Halsbury's Laws of Malaysia, entitled "Citizenship, Immigration, National Security and the Police".

In 2016, the Government of Malaysia appointed Edmund as the Representative of Malaysia to the ASEAN Intergovernmental Commission on Human Rights (AICHR). One component of his work is to promote the adoption and operationalisation of the 'Guiding Principles on Business & Human Rights – Implementing the United Nations "Protect, Respect & Remedy" Framework' by States and corporations. The AICHR is now moving ahead to seek a consensus among ASEAN Member States to adopt a 'Regional Strategy on Business & Human Rights'.

ADVOCATE & HEAD OF CHAMBERS (CRIMINAL)

Amer Hamzah bin Arshad

Years of Experience: 18 Years

Amer read law at University of Leeds, United Kingdom, where he was awarded an LL.B (Hons) in 1997. He obtained his Certificate of Legal Practice in 1998, and was admitted to the Malaysian Bar in 1999. His areas of practice cover both criminal and civil litigation.

His criminal law practice is primarily focused on defence work and appeals at the High Court, the Court of Appeal, and Federal Court of Malaysia. Amer has been involved in several landmark trials and appeals, which were widely covered by the media and reported in law journals. He has vast experience in the following areas:

- commercial crime cases (including criminal breach of trust, cheating, anti-money laundering, and market manipulation)
- corruption cases
- capital punishment cases (murder and kidnapping)
- drug offences (drug trafficking and possession),
- sexual offences
- offences against the public order
- offences relating to national security and terrorism
- immigration cases (involving asylum seekers and refugees)

He regularly advises and defends individuals and corporations prosecuted for breaches of various penal and regulatory laws relating to, among others, companies, securities, co-operative societies, employment, environmental and occupational safety.

Amer is human rights advocate, and has participated as defence counsel in cases involving human rights issues and violations. He has deep expertise in public interest litigation.

In respect to civil litigation, Amer's areas of practice include public and administrative law, relating to matters such as whistleblower protection, contracts, defamation, tort, commercial law, employment, and industrial relations.

Amer has previously served as an officer bearer at the Bar Council Legal Aid Centre (Kuala Lumpur), and as a member of the Bar Council's Criminal Law Committee and Human Rights Committee. He is deeply committed to advocacy work aimed at abolishing the death penalty.

Amer believes that a true lawyer is one who is willing to represent his client's perspective zealously within the bounds of law by subordinating all other interests, be it ideological, career, or personal.

ADVOCATE

Joshua Tay H'ng Foong

Years of Experience: 4 Years

Joshua completed his law degree in 2011 and obtained his Certificate in Legal Practice the following year. He was admitted as an advocate and solicitor of the High Court of Malaya in 2013.

Joshua specialises in the area of criminal law which has always been the subject of his interest. His choice is rooted in his firm belief that every person is entitled to a free and fair trial and that the death penalty is a form of cruel, inhumane and degrading form of punishment.

Joshua has appeared as solicitor and counsel in criminal trials and appeals involving white-collar elements (such as corruption, cheating, breach of trust and stock market manipulation), terrorism, firearms, murder, dangerous drugs, fatal accidents and immigration.

With regard to tax law, Joshua is currently advising two clients – an investment company and a medical practice – on a tax-based corporate dispute and a tax investigation being conducted by the authorities. In the area of public interest litigation against law enforcement agencies, Joshua is frequently instructed to handle the criminal law elements of the briefs.
